While we are all cautiously moving through our days and navigating our next steps, we encourage everyone to continue to show support to our local restaurant communities. This situation may be shaking up our lives as we know them – but we cannot let it take away what is most important to us: community.

The people who operate small, local restaurants, bakeries, delis and cafés in your town are your neighbors, your friends, and your family members. Please continue to think of ways to show your support to local businesses during these challenging times. The comfort of your favorite local restaurant can provide a familiar place to escape for a quick meal and some good company. Prefer the comfort of your own home? Consider placing a to-go order to bring home after a long day or purchase a gift certificate for future use.

To our restaurant partners: We are here for you. Let's think outside the box on how to provide new options to deliver the services your guests need – whether that's increased takeout orders or new ideas for family-style meals that are easy for people to pick up and bring home.

We are all in this together. Let's continue to support each other and we will get through this – one day, and one meal, at a time. #TheLocalDifference
